The Home Journal contains the following remarks by Mr. Willis upon dress, hats. &c. :-

"There are several artistic points in which the dress of the many has very much improved. The collar of the coat is now cut as a sculptor would have itso as not to interrupt the naturally curved line from the ear to the turn of the shoulder. By the making of the armhole larger, too, the dislocated or jointedon appearance of the sleeves is remedied. while the greater fullness of the sleeve itself liberalizes the general air of the garment. Trowsers are improved by the making the leg smaller as it approach es the instep, thus tapering it handsomely into the line of the well-made boot.

"But the greatest advantage of all is the present fashion of wearing waistcoat and trowsers of the same material, thus giving to the advancing figure a continuity of color from head to foot, and adding to the height as well as to the harmony of the proportions. The stripe down the outside seam of the pantloons is also an advantage to the height. In the wearing of the cravat, which is now a mere tie around a low-cut shirt collar, one of the finest points of masculine beauty is restored—the shape of the throat and neck below that commencingline of the beard which is so universally handsome. The increased attention to the shirt wristband adds to the look of cleanliness and elegance.

"Hats are quite in a state of anarcy Nobody knows what the fashion is. Sombreros of all descriptions prevail. But while the general appearance of the crowd is thus making vastly more picturesque the individual physiognomy suffers preportionately. Grave men scarcely look sane in the "rowdy latts" now so common -mercantile men look untrustworthyreligious men look abandoned-poets neglected-politicians reckless. Brady, the great photographer, should be busily at work, collecting for posterity the incredible auto caricatures of men of standing and morals, as seen in their prosent-day hat-wearings. Of suspended conscious respectability in the outer man it is a most curious psychological era!
"May we hope to be excused if we add to this generalizing record of fashion, a comparative remark which may possibly be considered somewhat in favor of our

The democratic principle seems to be equally at work in the dresses for ladies bonnets equally desperate in covering only the more sensuous phrenology. But, nearly successful. It requires more than one look to tell whether your well-dressed male fellow passenger on the deck of a steamboat is a gentleman or a snob, but at the very first glance you know whether Boot and Shoe Store, you see a lady or a chambermaid-albeit the lady and the chambermaid wear precisely the same fashions. Probably it requires nicer skill to appear a lady than to appear a gentleman. But we leave the subject, at this difficult and dangerous point, for our readers to argue."

The Goperice Rathway and Syramboay Rough to the West.—On Monday last several of our Gode-rich folks accepted the invitation of the Mayor and "Citizens" of East Saginsw to a Benquet in honor of the new Hote! The Kalsolah left on Tuesday eve-ning, and after a pleasant route, in which she showed her speed to an advantage, Captain McGregor brought to at the dock and the party were received in due form by the Mayor (Colonel Little) and other notables. The He tel (the Bancroft Home) is really a handsome brick builded, close by Colonel Little's a handsome brick builded, close by Colonel Little's Bank. The day was passing viewing the "sights' and remarking the activity of the lustimess people—It is certain that lumber merchants are not wanting in enterprise, and people is all other branches of business are not far behind them. Four thousand people have got themselves tegether and the place has become like a bee-hive, in the short space of aim years, the thriving towns of Bay City and Saginaw City being in the neighborhood. The river is highly favorable to the trade of all of them, admitting vessels of deep draft up the banks, and the tributaries supplying the saw logs and enabling the farmers to send wheat down. The Railread to Flint, a little inland, will soon be completed, and the andvantage to "all brick builded, close by Colonel Little will soon be completed, and the andvantage to "all hands" of Van Every and Rumballs' Kalsolah rente is obvious enough, only it ought to be more freely en-hands" of VanEvery and Rumballs Kaloolah route is obvious enough, only it ought to be more freely encouraged.

The hosts were numerous and courteous as possible. The dinner was good, and well attended, and the speecher remarkable for the virtue of brevity, as the decks must be cleaved for the dance by ten. And dance they did. The dining room with eight set of quadrilles in full hop at once must certainly be big enough for ordinary dinners. The Governor of Michigan, the Mayors of several cities, and several men of celebrity were present.

It was three the next day before the beat steamed off, there being a sumptions lanch for the Goderich guests before starting. Besides doing the hospitable most handsomely, the Saginan people expressed a hearry determination to eccourage our best to the best of their ability, and that is no little. We only want our only less mercurial and (they say over there) less enterprising people to do the same; and with the barbor improved we shall have one of the most eligible western connections by rail and boat on the continent.

These re-unious and this mercantile intimacy are meefal in more ways than one. We not only learn how to improve our material advantages, but we learn more of each other by more frequent intercourse, and our very friendships enhance our feelings of nationality and independence. There would have been no 1812 war, and no 1837 nonsonne, had the people of each country been familiar. Let nationa, tice men, learn each other, and no ingule such as asking a departure from loyalty, will manate from either towards the other. The true policy of these border countries is to be warm friends and commercial allies, and they will never be ensules or aniexationist.—
